

Journalism Minor Worksheet, 18 credit minor

The journalism minor offers a liberal arts approach to reporting and writing multimedia news. Students will learn to gather and report information through research, observation, and interviews and then communicate it through clear and compelling writing in multimedia stories enhanced by photography, video, audio, and social media and then published on a personal website. In addition, students will become more critical consumers of news through courses that offer an analysis of journalism and other media.

All analytical courses have the prefix MEDIA. All production courses have the prefix of MEDPL. Writing Intensive courses have a W in parenthesis following the course title.
