JENNY CARCHMAN is producer and co- director of “The Fourth Estate,” and has made award-winning documentaries for both theatrical release and broadcast television for PBS’s Frontline, American Masters, American Experience, POV, CNN, Showtime and HBO. She has produced several documentary films for Academy-Award winning director, Martin Scorsese (“Public Speaking,” and “George Harrison: Living in the Material World”) and directed HBO’s documentary “One Nation Under Dog,” which was the winner of the Television Academy Honors Award for “Television with a Conscience.”

Jenny produced the documentary “KOCH” on Ed Koch, the former mayor of New York City, “Citizen Jane: Battle for the City,” a feature documentary about Jane Jacobs, and “Long Strange Trip,” a six-part documentary series about the Grateful Dead. She directed, “Enlighten Us,” a film for CNN Films about a motivational speaker who went to prison after leading a deadly retreat.

MICHAEL M. GRYNBAUM is a media correspondent for The New York Times, covering the intersection of politics, journalism and culture. Since starting at The Times as an intern, he has served as City Hall bureau chief, Metro political writer, transportation reporter, and economics writer during the 2008 financial crisis. He graduated from Harvard magna cum laude with a degree in history and literature. He lives in Manhattan with his fiancée and their Persian cat, Pajama.

A. ADAM GLENN is distinguished lecturer in the journalism program at Hunter College. During his 35-year journalism career, he has worked in newspaper, magazine and online newsrooms in New York and Washington, D.C., including at ABCNews.com. As a digital media consultant, he has worked with news publishers, think tanks and non-profits. He’s a long-time specialist in environmental news, and he has taught journalism at Columbia University, New York University, CUNY and the Indian Institute of Journalism and New Media.
